TAKING THE NEXT STEP INTO COLLEGE

TAKING THE NEXT STEP INTO COLLEGE

I was born very ambitious and determined always to be the top. My parents raised me to be always the top and gave me a high sense of self-esteem, something that I still have to date. The first time I joined school I was excited and ready to learn because I knew that it is the only school that will help shape my future. I was very curious, and I was very active both in the class and curricular activities. I made sure that I was always among the top both in class and in other activities. I joined the young school football team at the age of 10, and I have had a passion since then on football. In class, I was excellent in mathematics and computer studies. I started learning to programme at the age of twelve through the assistance of our computer teacher. I became very good with time, and I was appointed a school captain. My work was to enter the school marks into the system, and I also participated in the production of the school report forms. At the same time, I was the soccer captain for the young scholars, and I was given the responsibility of leading the other teammates in the field. I was an all-around student, and nothing was difficult for me in school.

My dream has always been to become a computer programmer and developer. Joining college will help me achieve my ambitious dreams as a computer scientist, programmer, and developer. I believe that through college I will achieve skills that are vital for my career development. Joining college will be a massive transition for me because it is going to shape me for the future. It is going to help me grow both mentally and physically. It is the path to my academic goals that I have always dreamt of since I was a child. Both my parents have gone through college and achieved their dreams, and I have always felt encouraged and want to follow their footsteps. I understand that college life is not easy and it is full of ups and downs, including peer influence, and I am ready to say no when it is necessary. I am the first born in our family, and my siblings are looking up to me in life and academics. Being in college is a huge responsibility for me because I have to do my best to set a good example to my siblings and other young stars who look up to me.

I joined the high school as a teen, and it was not always easy. I had to follow school rules and observe discipline at all times. High school transformed me into an obedient student and a performer both in class and outside. Once again I joined the school football team, and I was exposed to further training. This training improved my football skills, and I was ranked the top. We participated in school competitions, and our school team was always the top. High school taught me how to be a team leader and the importance of teamwork. We always worked as a team, and we were responsible for each other. Our team coach encouraged us to improve and work as individuals but at the same time work as a team.

While in college I aspire to join the soccer team and be actively involved in my classwork. I ought to acquire all skills and knowledge that are vital for my career development. I want to gain computer skills and knowledge that will help me solve problems in the business world and the technology world. I will use my part-time to participate in the soccer team and train as a student-athlete. I am determined to balance my academic life goals and curricular activities in the school, and always be the best student.
